

Care Coordination

Learning that your child has a disability can be the most shocking and disconcerting news you as a parent will ever receive. While the parents bear the heaviest burden, the situation affects siblings, extended family members, the community, and society as a whole. The shock is usually followed by a deluge of questions: How serious is it? What should we do? Who do we see? Will insurance cover the medical expenses? What about school? Will the city help? the county? the state? Are there support groups? Is the Internet accurate? and so on.... You or your spouse may stop working to care for your child—compounding the rising expenses with a loss of income.

We created Pediatric Care Coordination in response to parents' requests. We coordinate services for your family and your child. We use our ever expanding knowledge base to find the right practitioners, the quality services, the best groups, and the latest good information. At your request, we represent you at schools and before agencies. We make sure your medical records are sent where and when you want them—while always protecting your privacy. We know the challenges and sacrifices of care giving for a special needs child. We relieve some of the burden with compassion, understanding, and action so that you can focus on the loving and nurturing your child needs, as well as other members of the family...and yourself.

Costs and payment

Creative's highest priority is improving the well being of your child while providing a fair value proposition: affordable services available to families needing them. Medical insurance covers the majority of pediatric Occupational Therapy services. We are network providers for most major area insurance carriers (and continue to seek credentialing of others to broaden our ability to serve you). We submit network claims for you, speak up for your benefit when necessary with insurers, and work with you if we are not in your insurers' network. (We have a worksheet on our web site to help you.) For co-payment, deductible, and non-covered charges or for uninsured clients we accept cash, check, and major credit cards. If you need more time to pay or have other financial needs, we will work with you to create an affordable plan: confidential, no fees, no interest, and no third party.

Therapeutic excellence through innovation—integration—collaboration™

Pediatric Care Program

“Providing children effective and appropriate therapies is one of our greatest challenges and the most important service at Creative Health Solutions. The quality and relevance of these therapies impact the child, the family, and community. We know what is at stake and carry out our responsibility with commitment and the skills, insights, passion, compassion, and expertise to succeed. We select the right treatments to help your child find the inner and external resources to best navigate the world and best relate to the important people in their life.” – Judy and Richard Feingold, Founders, Creative Health Solutions

“Mrs. Feingold has been our daughter's occupational therapist for almost a year. She is a true advocate for children/individuals with special needs. She is a highly skilled OTR/L who is passionate and provides the latest and most innovative therapies. Judy Feingold and Creative Health Solutions offer a comprehensive approach to quality health care services in an otherwise hopelessly confusing health care arena.” – Adriana G

Elements of Pediatric Care

Key elements of care for children with special needs and disabilities:

- Facilitating mind and body coordination and helping the child interact effectively with the world (provided through Occupational Therapy)
- Teaching the child how to communicate with others in his or her life (provided through Speech Therapy)
- Helping the family navigate the challenging terrain of physicians, therapies, schools, agencies, insurance coverage, support groups, home help services, and other difficult situations (provided through Pediatric Care Coordination)

Occupational Therapy

The path to improvement and recovery

Occupational Therapy uses combined powers of mind and body to help each child overcome their disability or disorder. We choose specific relevant treatment modalities, combining and integrating them to provide the child the best.

Does your child need OT?

OT treats conditions ranging from severe autism to minor developmental delays. Sometimes the need is obvious and the pediatrician writes a script; if there is doubt, we will perform an initial evaluation or a free consultation or developmental screening.

Many disorders deprive children of sufficient sensory input. Our sensory integration program and gym provide selected, specific input, a key element in achieving meaningful and lasting improvements.

Treatment Modalities

We provide a comprehensive suite of treatments uniquely integrated for each child, including:

Interactive MetronomeSM Balance Skills
Therapeutic Listening[®] Reflex Integration
Anat Baniel MethodTM Visual Skills Training
Feldenkrais Method[®] Movement Coordination
“Astronaut Training” Neurological Development

Communications

Facilitating the exchange of ideas

Speech and Language Pathology practice focuses on communication and swallowing. Many children receiving OT also require Speech Therapy. The interdisciplinary team approach helps ensure that we discover and treat speech and swallowing disorders.

Usual areas of concern and treatment

Resonance Voice
Fluency Cognition
Speech sound production
Feeding and swallowing
Language (comprehension and expression)
Pragmatics (language use, social aspects of communication)

Integrated approach for powerful results

We leverage the natural connection of Occupational and Speech Therapy. Each deals with the mind and body. Each has its own approach and focus, as well as overlap with the other. The span of their differences extends and helps clarify our treatment: we achieve the best of both disciplines. The areas of commonality are powerful leverage points: they provide solid starting places for treatment. Each discipline helps the mind and the body improve their working together. Yet, communication has a very special and possibly defining role: facilitating the exchange of ideas.
